Dear Speaker Johnson, Majority Leader Schumer, Leader Jeffries, and Leader McConnell:

The undersigned organizations representing consumers, family members, mental health and addiction providers, advocates, and other stakeholders write today to express support for the bipartisan, bicameral DHS Suicide Prevention and Resiliency for Law Enforcement Act (H.R. 2577/S. 1137). We urge the U.S. House of Representatives and the U.S. Senate to support the passage of this important legislation, which the House Homeland Security Committee and Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee advanced on a bipartisan basis earlier this year. It is critical that Congress pass this important legislation to enable the U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS) to provide officers and agents with mental health resources, reduce stigma, and help prevent suicide.

First responders are vulnerable to acute occupational hazards and stressors on the job, including traumatic events, which can in turn increase risk for suicidal behavior or exacerbate existing risk for suicide related to other factors. Research highlights the link between suicide among first responders and Post Traumatic Stress Disorder or Post Traumatic Stress Injury (PTSD/PTSI). From 2007 to 2022, the U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) lost 149 people to suicide and in 2022, U.S. CBP reported 15 suicides—the most since 2007, the year it started tracking such deaths.¹

The DHS Suicide Prevention and Resiliency for Law Enforcement Act establishes a mental health and wellness program for the DHS, the largest federal law enforcement agency with approximately 80,000 officers across nine agencies and officers. The bill requires annual interactive virtual suicide awareness and law enforcement resiliency as well as suicide prevention and resiliency support and training for families of law enforcement agents and officers. The bill also helps to promote a culture that reduces the stigma of seeking help by revising policies that ensure that the workforce can access mental health resources and improving access to peer supports.

We look forward to working with you to pass the DHS Suicide Prevention and Resiliency for Law Enforcement Act. For more information, please contact Emily Feltren, Senior Director of Federal Policy and Advocacy at the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention at efeltren@afsp.org.
